ACADEMIC REGALIA

The academic costume worn at official functions today originated in the universities of the Middle Ages, when a warm gown and hood were useful for scholars and clerics in unheated buildings. By modern times, the growth in the number of universities caused a great deal of confusion in academic regalia, and in 1894-95 a commission brought some order to the chaos. The American Council on Education subsequently effected more improvements in 1959-60.

The mortarboard cap, which generally prevails in the United States, originated at Oxford and Cambridge. Most European universities and some Latin American universities use other types of caps, which are, of course, legitimate for wear in any American procession when the individual holds his degree from one of those institutions.

Gowns are generally black, although some universities depart from this practice. The bachelor's gown is simple, with long pointed sleeves. The master's gown will have either long sleeves with narrow wrist openings or long sleeves with the arm emerging from the sleeve at about elbow length. The doctoral gown is fullest in cut; it has velvet panels down the front and around the neck, as well as three bars of the same material on the bell shaped sleeves.

The hood indicates the level of the degree, the discipline in which it was given, and the institution that granted it. Degree level is indicated by length: the master's hood is three and a half feet long and the doctoral hood is four feet long. The velvet trim on the exposed edge of the hood is three inches wide for the master's degree and five inches wide for the doctoral degree. The color of the trim indicates the field of study. A color, or color pattern, between the trim indicates the university granting the degree.

Hood trim colors indicate the following fields:

WHITE - Arts, Letters, Humanities

DRAB - Commerce, Business

LILAC - Dentistry

COPPER - Economics

LIGHT BLUE - Education

ORANGE - Engineering

BROWN - Fine Arts

CRIMSON - Journalism

PURPLE - Law
